

Severe Weather Expected for June 16-20

The National Weather Service says Wisconsin residents should expect a series of storms to roll across the state this week. These storms will likely produce heavy rain with the potential to cause flooding, thunderstorms with damaging winds and hail, along with possible tornadoes.

There is also a risk of heavy rain which could lead to flooding:

These weather risks will continue through Thursday across much of the state.

ReadyWisconsin and Wisconsin Emergency Management urge you to monitor the weather over the next several days and be ready to respond to any watches or warnings issued for your area. Purchase a NOAA Weather Radio, follow watches and warnings on ReadyWisconsin Twitter (www.twitter.com/readywisconsin) and Facebook (www.facebook.com/readywisconsin).